To Whom It May Concern:

Greenbrook Pools has recently performed a complete renovation and rebuilding of our community swimming pool which was originally built in 1981. The pool serves 4 Condo Associations containing 156 units.

Greenbrook Pools earned the contract in a competitive bidding process conducted by a professional and independent pool construction engineer who was specifically hired for this purpose.

The pool had been dormant for a few years while disagreements among the Associations were debated and was suffering multiple leaks and obsolete equipment.

Many pool companies would not work with an independent engineer on a pool project, preferring to design the pool themselves.

Many pool companies do not want a knowledgeable and independent third party overseeing the materials and methods they use.

Many pool companies do not want to work with multiple Associations that have differing and conflicting opinions.

Greenbrook Pools was not threatened by justifying their materials and work methods to an independent engineer or refereeing disagreements among the Associations.

Not only did Ira Grabow and his team work effectively with the independent engineer, but they also made suggestions and improvements in his design. They performed their work professionally and efficiently. They met all the requirements of the building codes and inspections. They performed many uncompensated follow up services during the transition period of pool maintenance companies that went well beyond the call of duty.

If I were involved in another pool that needed renovation or construction, I would not hesitate to contract with Greenbrook Pools even if an independent engineer were not involved.

Please do not hesitate to contact me for further information on our project or Greenbrook Pools. I am glad to provide a reference this company that treats the needs and concerns of their clients as priority one.
